Dear Mr. Weisberg --

You never cease to amaze me! I had no idea W-II was really ready until it arrived yesterday . . . had sorta expected a January arrival, at best. I'd just started "Seat of Power" to fill my few moments available for reading (Horan's book is the only piece of FICTION I've tackled lately except for re-reading the Warren Report!) when W-II came . . . so it's back to the bookshelf for Mr. Horan!

Last night I had time only to read your Preface, look at the pictures at the end and read the back cover - I can hardly wait to dig into it as I can tell at a quick scan, you've DONE IT AGAIN! Your chapter headings intrigue me greatly . . . and I was delighted to be mentioned in your Preface - as I consider myself among the most enthusiastic of the "hundred and hundreds of people who wrote" after reading W-I.

The minute I've finished W-II, you'll hear from me again . . . meanwhile, I trust you'll take a few days off to relax and enjoy the holidays!

Sincerely,

Anne Bradford

I like your "same design"
different color" cover!
